Beginning around 1979, a group of like-minded women lawyers who had been friends in law school, or who had become friends after starting their legal careers, planned regular social gatherings just to get together with each other. After a few such occasions, their discussions turned to their status as lawyers and to creating an organization to meet their professional and personal needs. These women were visionaries who felt the needs of women lawyers were greater than the profession’s ability at the time to meet them. For more than a decade, they continued to talk about what form and structure such an organization might take, gleaning any useful information from other women’s bar organizations nationwide. Finally in 1994 the Women Lawyers Section of the Birmingham Bar Association (hereinafter “WLS”) was born and is open to any member of the Birmingham Bar Association.

The focus of the WLS is on the professional and personal concerns and needs of women lawyers. In addition, the founders recognized the need to encourage the participation of women lawyers in the bar association and to inspire charitable activities, as well as networking and mentoring. Under the auspices of the WLS, members have reached out into the community to help women and children in need, frequently partnering with the YWCA to help those in its shelters and programs.

The WLS has dedicated officers and board members who meet monthly to plan events and activities. These individuals, in addition to other members who serve on committees, provide the numerous volunteer hours and means for the smooth running of the section’s many activities. The WLS continues to expand its numbers and offer meaningful opportunities for the professional growth of its members. Each year is concluded with an annual meeting, when new officers and board members are elected. Then a festive celebration with good food and sisterhood wraps up the year’s end.
The Family Court of Jefferson County Alabama (hereinafter “Family Court”) located in Birmingham, Alabama hears juvenile dependency and delinquency cases. At Family Court, children whose cases are pending, parents, siblings and other family members wait in a large holding area on church style pews until their cases are called. This process often takes a large part of a morning or a day. The area is devoid of toys or items to help parents and children occupy time while they wait. The Women Lawyers Section of the Birmingham Bar Association saw the need to assist Family Court with providing a more child friendly waiting area.

In January 2008 representatives of the WLS met with Family Court administration and the Presiding Judge to propose the idea of a children’s library area. The WLS collected children’s books from attorneys and law firms. Donations were encouraged through a book drive with drop off sites at many law firms in a variety of locations throughout the area. By working with the Birmingham Bar Foundation, donors received a charitable donation tax receipt at the point of drop off. Approximately 600 books were collected. The WLS discussed with Family Court applicable building construction restrictions, child safety, the design of the existing room and wall mural, and the organization of books for the library. It was decided that the books would be housed a play area near the waiting room. Children would have space to read and play and would also be able to hear cases being called on the docket. Crate-style storage cubes were used to shelve the books along the wall under a painted mural. The crates are low to the ground so children can reach inside and are plastic so as to reduce injury. They can also be converted to seating. The height of the crates allows for a full view of the wall mural and colors were chosen to coordinate with the painting. Signs were constructed to advise parents and children that the library area was available for use. Children are allowed to take a book with them upon leaving Family Court. A plaque was also constructed acknowledging the donation of the children’s library by the WLS and also the WLS member who provided primary funding for the project. The project was completed in January 2009 at an approximate cost of $500.

Family Court is very excited about the library and children are using the reading area. Within a couple of days after installation of the books, Leatha Gilbert Immediate past chair of the WLS made a visit to Family Court on a case she had pending. Leatha states, “I just got back from Family Court and I popped downstairs to check out the books and there were several children reading and enjoying them. One little girl was so engrossed that she was oblivious to what was going on around her.” In addition, Jefferson County Family Court Administrator Jeff McGee writes:

[T]hank you and the Birmingham Bar Women Lawyers Section for the generous donation of books and storage cubes to Family Court’s Children’s Area. Our clients often spend long hours in an uncomfortable courthouse waiting room that offers nothing for active children. The Children’s Area is a little respite for the families with young children. The books and brightly colored storage cubes your group donated are a welcome addition. With the new paging system, the families will no longer be restricted to the wooden benches of the waiting room, and instead can wait in the children’s area until called. With all the stresses these families come into our building with, the Children’s Area may be a little bright spot for the kids.

The WLS will monitor the Family Court reading area twice each year, collect additional books annually, and update date the space as needed. In addition, the WLS is processing requests from others such as the Domestic Violence Court to provide similar library areas at courthouses serving children and families.

Other women lawyers associations can easily duplicate and adapt a children’s library or reading area at courthouses within their geographic regions. Eight (8) WLS planning committee members were needed to coordinate the book drive, purchase the shelving and install the library area at Family Court. The cost of the children’s library was minimal and included the purchase of shelving and a recognition plaque. The project could also be expanded to include providing additional items of education or entertainment for the area or by establishing reading areas at other courthouses. The appreciation shown to the WLS by Family Court, the evidence of children using the library, and the requests received by the WLS to duplicate the reading area at other courthouses, reflect the project’s ability to exist as a worthwhile undertaking by other women’s bar associations. The project is easily maintained and/or duplicated from year to year and can be accomplished with a minimal outlay of time and money. Moreover, the benefits are great. Children and families are served in that their visits to Family Court less stressful. Judges, Courts, citizens and families are also able to see the active role of the WLS in helping the Court system better serve the public and operate more effectively.

Dear Crystal:

I wanted to take this opportunity to thank you and the Birmingham Bar Women Lawyers Section for the generous donation of books and storage cubes to Family Court's Children's Area. Our clients often spend long hours in an uncomfortable courthouse waiting room that offers nothing for active children.

The Children's Area is a little respite for the families with young children. The books and brightly colored storage cubes your group donated are a welcome addition. With the new paging system, the families will no longer be restricted to the wooden benches of the waiting room, and instead can wait in the children's area until called. With all the stresses these families come into our building with, the Children's Area may be the little bright spot for the kids.

Thank you for your gift to Family Court and to the families we serve.

Sincerely,

Jeff McGee
Court Administrator
